CARPENTERS AT WAR

Brotherhood Men Declare Amalgamated Faithless.

STRIKE HAS NEW DIFFICULTY

Attempt to Oust One Organization from Union on Grounds Men Are Helping to Break Building Strike by Filling Jobs of Brotherhood Arouses Retaliatory Statements.

The carpenters' strike has developed double interest since the Brotherhood of Carpenters and the Amagamated Society have taken issue and are at war.

At a recent meeting of the Central Labor Union, it was charged that the Amalgamated men were working on jobs where Brotherhood men had struck. ascertain the facts, a com pointed, and at a meeting of the unic Monday night, report was made and a resolution passed charging the amalgamatd men with attempting to break the strike, and steps were taken to expel them from the union Charge Held Unjust.

Following a meeting of a branch of the Amalgamated Society last night, business agent W. F. Gilmore, stated that the charge was unjust and misleading, and that the Central Labor Union had not summoned the society before its meet-ing to defend itself, and had never communicated with them regarding the com-mittee investigating the matter.

W. S. McDonald, secretary and treasurer of the society, stated that in January they communicated with the brotherhood, stating that they were going to ask for better conditions, and would like to co-operate with them. February 5 and March 23 other communications were sent the brotherhood, but no reply was received, it is said. In the meantime, the amalgamated had communicated with the Builders' League, and on May 31 a com-munication was received from the builders, complying with the society's demand. The proposition was accepted, and as the agreement was made five days previous to the strike of the brotherhood, the amalgamated men contend that they can-not break their agreement by quitting on builders whom they are on good terms They deny that they have gone to work on jobs where union men have struck, but state that wherever the union brotherhood men have gone back to work they have gone to work beside

Fishing and Shooting Outings. Don't plan your vacation until you gust published by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Opening with Dr. William T. Hornaday's "Sportsman's Creed," this little eighty-page book is crammed with solid information about the big and little game, wild fowl, and fish to be found in the Canadian Mountains, forests, lakes, and streams. The different kinds of game are illustrated with half-tones from excellent photographs, and their habitat and habits described in detail.

An exceedingly interesting chapter on canoe trips and camping, giving approximate costs, is supplemented with another on outfits, supplies, guides, routes, &c. The book closes with a clear and concise statement of the Canadian game laws and the liberal custom regulations.

Whether your outing lasts a couple of weeks or several months, this little book called "Fishing and Shooting," will give you a wealth of interesting information. It will be mailed free on request, or may be had of the ticket office of the Canadian Pacific Railway, E. P. Allen, C. P. and F. A., Bond Building, Fourteenth street and New York avenue.

GIRL TRIES SUICIDE IN SOUTHEAST CAFE

Marie Gordon Drinks Poison. but Will Recover.

Calmly saying to her companion, 'Here's where I die," Marie Gordon, twenty-one and pretty, living at 1226 D street southwest, yesterday afternoon attempted suicide by taking bichloride of mercury in an upstairs dining-room of a cafe at 1100 Eighth street southeast. She was hurried to Casualty Hospital in an ambulance, where the prompt efforts of the physicians saved her life. She will be able to go to her home within a few days. The girl was one of a party of four who were drinking in the cafe. Her companions say that she showed them the poison and told them she was going to noments, and when she came corn is th' worst. When a woman gits a reached for a glass of water and tossed off the tablets.

No reason can be given by any of the girl's relatives as to why she tried to end her life. The girl herself refuses to talk on the subject. She said that she 'won't try it again.'
